Favourable winds for NMDC stock

Good profitability in June quarter and rising iron ore prices paint a bright picture

UJJWAL JAUHARI

After seeing a steep correction between February and June, the NMDC stock has rebounded 15 per cent to ₹121 levels. More gains are likely.

While the stock's correction was due to declining iron ore prices, recovery in prices and strong June quarter performance lifted sentiment. From highs of $90 a tonne in February, iron ore prices had fallen to $50 levels by June-end. The price is now close to $75 a tonne.

Despite a correction in iron ore prices during the June quarter, profitability of NMDC improved. Earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation (Ebitda) per tonne, at ₹1,628, surged 55 per cent year-on-year and 71 per cent sequentially. NMDC being able to hold on to the price hikes taken in the March quarter, despite declining iron ore prices, was one of the reasons for better profitability. The support came from strong demand as Karnataka auction prices increased 4-9 per cent, say analysts at Kotak Institutional Equities.

The company also surprised with higher-than-expected exports. The management, say analysts, indicated towards higher average prices in export markets despite global prices falling.

Per-tonne realisation at ₹3,094 improved 40 per cent year-on-year and 5.3 per cent sequentially. NMDC also did well on controlling operating costs. Per-tonne basis costs declined 26 per cent sequentially, though up 26 per cent year-on-year, the increase in profit was much faster. All this saw net profit surging 38 per cent year-on-
